This is our second cover, which we have changed to display a mature version of the application. The requirement here is to display the application in a more mature, professional way. Rather than the classy, third-party logo used in the previous cover, we are going to use a more professional one. Our second redesign is quite a major overhaul. In order to make the interface as streamlined as possible, we have completely reorganized the interface, which has now been designed to take better advantage of the users' spatial memory. The menu bars have also been reorganized. By designing the interface in such a way that it becomes intuitive, easy to learn and use, we have made the first version of dwgPlotX a viable, useful tool. Now, this version has reached the level of being a mature, powerful program with a high degree of functionality. As we did previously, we have also incorporated features like expression editing, advanced color schemes, etc. In order to make it more productive, we have added new features to make it easier to work with objects like drawbars, text and labels, callouts and annotations. Also, the application has now been tested using 64-bit Windows 7 platform. Finally, if you take the time to provide feedback, we would love to hear from you. We would also love to hear your story as to how you benefited from using the application. Tell us about your experience. We are eager to find ways to make this application even better for you. dwgPlotX has a new version with a completely redesigned interface.
