Q: Getting the last line of a file by date I have a directory with many files that I want to extract the last line of. They're divided by type and year as such: 2017_2018_2019.txt 2018_2019_2020.txt 2017_2018_2019.txt etc The directory is a git repo I'm working with which has an entry for 2017 through 2019. The actual data changes from year to year. Currently I'm using a txt.file that has the lines I want separated by date type and year. I then get the last line: `extractFile = getOpenFile(fname, mode.chr("r")).readline()` At this point I'm not sure how to get the last line of a specific file. A: If the string at the end of each line is the same, as well as the year, then it's quite simple. The last year will be the year at the end of all lines, minus 1. Assuming the string at the end of each line is unique: `import re with open('path/to/file') as f: for line in f: if re.search(r'\b(\d{4})\d{4}', line): pass else: last_year = re.search(r'\b(\d{4})\d{4}', line).group(1)` This is a very crude method, but it works, and it's so much easier than looping over lines. If you want more advanced parsing, using "regex" is the only way to go. If you're unfamiliar with regex, that's entirely fine; nothing in the game is more mysterious than regex. So the brute force method is a good place to start. This is the best solution: `import re with open('path/to/file') as f: last_line = False for line in f: if last_line: if re.search(r'\b(\d`

NEWARK — A 25-year-old city man was sentenced today to 17 years and eight months in prison for participating in a scheme that involved the delivery of children to and the sexual exploitation of 14 boys, State Attorney General Anne Milgram said today. Patrick Cox, of the 500 block of Market Street, was sentenced by Superior Court Judge William R. Tunner to a 17-year-and-eight-month prison term on one count of first-degree conspiracy to commit prostitution and one count of second-degree endangering the welfare of a child. Cox also received 15 years' probation and 1,000 hours of community service for each count. The sentence was the minimum allowed under the plea arrangement reached with Cox and the state in October, and was recommended by the Attorney General's Office. Cox pleaded guilty to one count of third-degree child sexual abuse, in which he admitted to traveling across the state to deliver two male children, ages 12 and 14, to houses of prostitution. The sentences were the result of a joint investigation by the Statewide Organized Crime Unit, the Statewide Child Exploitation Task Force, U.S. Homeland Security Investigations, U.S. Postal Inspection Service, the Office of the New Jersey State Police, the Essex County Prosecutor's Office and the Newark Police Department, with assistance from New Jersey County Prosecutors' Office.
