Akshay Ishtyle This is an Android application that will allow you to search for images of the user's choice. The tool has a rather simple set of options, apart from the image search, which is good because it will likely be accurate and result in finding the content you're looking for, fast. Unfortunately, it is also a bit cumbersome, especially if one wants to pinpoint a specific section of the image. Akshay Ishtyle Google Play | Windows Phone version | Windows App Store

Amin This is a utility for those who want to create an app for your Android device, but lack the coding skills to do the job. The app will walk you through the creation of your app and then, after it is complete, you will be able to download the zip file and install it on the device. If you're not comfortable with Android apps or have little knowledge of coding, you might find this to be a rather useful tool. Hexner's formula In mathematics, H. Axler calls the formula that states that the characteristic polynomial of a matrix. For a matrix A , the elements of the vector given by the formula are given by which is called the (characteristic) polynomial of A . The following form of the formula is more common and is called Hexner's formula: where A is a square matrix of order n and X is the transpose of. The formula can be derived using the Cayley–Hamilton theorem and the observation that a basic result on polynomials is that a polynomial of order m that vanishes on a non-empty open set of the real numbers, will have at least m distinct roots, which all are real. A similar result applies to the characteristic polynomial of a square matrix.

Proposition Let A be a square matrix of order n and let B and C be square matrices of the same size and the same dimension. Suppose that p_A and p_B are the corresponding characteristic polynomials. Then, $p_A - p_B$ is a non-zero polynomial of degree n . Thus, p_A and p_B are linearly independent polynomials over \mathbb{R} , where p_A and p_B are the characteristic polynomials of A and B , respectively. The above proposition can be reformulated as the following theorem, Theorem Let A be a square matrix of order n and let B and C be square matrices of the same size and the same dimension. Let p_A and p_B be the characteristic polynomials of A and B , respectively. If p_A and p_B are two non-zero real polynomials of degree n that are not proportional, then p_A and p_B are linearly independent polynomials over \mathbb{R} . Examples
