The invention relates to a magnetic flow meter, particularly for use in medical technology. Devices for measuring the flow rate of gas or other substances are used in a wide variety of technological fields. Such flow meters are described, for example, in German patent DE-PS 2.953.062 and 3.918.947 as well as in British patent GB-PS 1.966.552, which are hereby expressly incorporated by reference as far as the details of their construction are concerned. In brief, flow meters generally operate as follows. Gas flowing through a pipe is drawn through one or several nozzles, which are connected to a pressure source, by a suction pump or some other device. The gas flow rate is in turn determined by the speed of the suction pump or some other driving device. So far, the above-mentioned flow meters have been configured in such a way that the magnetically actuated rotor of a measurement rotor and the stator of a counter stat
